OUR INSIGHT

FACTORS AFFECTING CHILD'S DEVELOPMENT

For a child to develop normally they must attain physical milestones like sitting and walking. They must acquire the expression and the comprehension of language. They must be able to retain old knowledge and use it as the foundation for new knowledge. They must learn to relate effectively to the people and the environment around them. It is rare to find a task that relies solely on one skill which is why if one area is lagging or dysfunctional, the entire process of development is compromised. When these areas of cognition or function are delayed, a child may be said to be experiencing a developmental delay. Here's the detailed report of the child's developmental.
